Critical Race Studies in Education Association Annual Conference Request for Proposals

We invite institutions of higher education to submit a proposal to host a future CRSEA conference. Proposals should be submitted no later than April 1 of the year prior to when your institution hopes to host the conference. We are presently accepting proposals to host the 2018 conference. Please email the proposal to crseainfo@gmail.com

The Critical Race Studies in Education Association (CRSEA) is an interdisciplinary consortium of scholar activists, graduate students, education practitioners, and community-engaged education stakeholders who recognize the global implications of race and racism in the education of minoritized people in the US. As an education research association, we work to identify, expose, and advocate against racial inequities, ultimately aiming to eradicate white supremacy. As a community, we are committed to: (1) countering and combating systemic and structural racism through education scholarship and praxis; (2) recognizing the multiple locations of oppression and the myriad manifestations and effects of their intersections; and (3) co-constructing liberating knowledge that facilitates collective agency to transform schools and communities. With this mission in mind, the annual Critical Race Studies in Education (CRSEA) conference brings together education researchers, community organizers, activists, educators, students and members of the community who use, or are interested in, the critical study of race to frame, examine, document, understand and disrupt racial injustice in education, and in the broader society.
